BELIEVES TAFT WON ON HIS MERIT

Says Convention In Chicago Next Week Will Be Merely A Ratification Meeting For The Ohio Candidate.

[Special service to Janesville Gazette.] [Copyright, 1908, by George Matthew Arnold.]

Chicago, June 12.—The committee working on the credentials to the national convention has not had a roll call. The request to do away with the roll call, came from the representatives of the allies, the gentlemen opposing the nomination of Taft. Yet every case so far decided has either been decided entirely for Taft or has been decided for a compromise giving him at least half of the delegates.

BY WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE

der him, just to keep his hand in, he is after all an exception, and the average man, sitting in a national committee is pretty much like the average man sitting in a lodge meeting, or in a directors' meeting at a bank.

So on the merits of it, the thing which those in the lobby of the Coliseum where the national committee sit, call the steam roller, of the Taft machine, is really the average American citizen upon the facts presented. On the committee listening to the evidence are former Governor Overlie of Ohio, Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, Senators Lodge and Capper, John P. Hill of Maine, E. B. Hart of Iowa and D. W. Stanford of Kansas. If anything crooked was going on in that committee hearing, they would not only know of it, but they would not permit it. They think more of their own reputations than of Taft's nomination. So when day after day Taft wins southern delegates, with those men as judges of the evidence, there is good reason to suppose that the evidence of regularity is with the Taft delegation.

affecting the actual nomination of Taft is concerned is purely gratuitous. Taft will be nominated by the Mississippi valley. From the Alleghenies to the Rockies—the core of this continent—will come the delegates which will nominate Taft. Now New York and Pennsylvania are bound boys at this bidding. They are dominant figures. Taft in this convention is the candidate of the states that borrow capital and not of the states that lend it. So typically his candidacy in the republican party is that of those who are earning and saving, and the allies have their strength among those communities of this nation that have accumulated and must hold what they have. Cannon and Fairbanks represent Illinois and Indiana rather as favorite sons than as typical candidates. The real sentiment which the allies stand for is found farther from home.

So here in the republican convention, the conflicting forces of the present day American problem will find expression, and expression is one step toward solution. And it is likely that the expression the platform will take will embody imperiously the temperment of the candidate. Taft is essentially a kind hearted conservative. The one sure thing about the platform is that it will not embody the elements of radicalism. It is bound to state in terms more or less definite the case of those who honestly earn and would hold against those who desire and would take. Probably not at this convention, but at some convention within the next ten years, the republican party will take a strong, clearly defined position against socialism, and for individualism. Taft is essentially an individualist and not at all of the socialist temperament, and the two wings of the party today, the Taft forces and the allies, differ only in the degree which each is willing to go in stating squarely in the platform the belief in individualism.

Which seems rather absurd when one sees this vast idle vicious crowd of men in their Sunday clothes—generally two-piece suits as are advertised in the backs of magazines. The hotel lobbies are filled with prominent citizens of brick-paved towns who drift around as aimlessly and as much like lost sheep as the delegates from Grant township do when they arrive the night before the county convention in Emporia. If you would know how the president of the international brotherhood is faring at Chicago, go to the principal hotel in your country town the night before the county convention. Observe that clouded former drifting around the lobby of the hotel looking eagerly for someone from Willowdale; very well he owns the biggest farm and the largest Hereford herd in Grant township, but no one seems to care for him at the county seat. So here in interborough president is a mighty small potato in a big pile. And yet somewhere by the curious human chemistry that forms great events, that the crowd of men in their Sunday clothes, and though he is a wealthy and long-some and ignorant of all that, he thinks is going on about him, this man makes the destiny of the republic.

For in his heart is the average honesty of the nation and to keep with in that circumference area of average honesty, and still work out their factional designs, the workers and flaxers and manipulators in the rooms upstairs, are laying their schemes and drafting their plans. But the least some little man with three aching feet with a Pullman suitcase in his hand shows in after all the children of the two camps of generals and captains of politics: no matter all they are not far apart. They are working to please him. They have his hand always in hand, and do not dare to go beyond it. Therefore no matter who steers the land in this country, his course is in one general direction, so it keeps off serious rocks.

Taft of graft, and machinations and duplicity and wickedness is good talk. It acts upon the national liver. But because it gorges us a bit, there is no reason why we feel that the nation is falling into slow decay or falling into disaster. We should cheer up. This national convention is a fatal occasion. The wise looking little man who doesn't know a thing in the world about it, is after all the man who is running the whole performance. And he is dependable. Men like him proclaimed the declaration of independence. A man like him wrote the constitution. A man like him wrote the war proclamation, he, this weary, uncomfortable mixed-up man with a throbbing corn, a thousand miles from home and sorry for it, and not the beautiful statue of liberty in New York harbor, should emblemize the perpetuity of American institutions in freedom and equality.

100TH ANNIVERSARY TO BE CELEBRATED

Temperance Workers Gather In Saratoga For Centennial Celebration.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Saratoga, N. Y., June 12.—Scores of men and women temperance leaders of international reputation are gathered here to take part in a ten days international congress in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the first American temperance society. The formal opening of the gathering is set for tomorrow morning, when rallies will be held simultaneously in three of Saratoga's largest churches. During the week that follows many noted speakers will be heard, among others: George Hughes, Rev. Elias C. Swallow, Joshua Levering, of Baltimore, Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, D. D., of Brooklyn, President Samuel Dickie of Allen College, and Ralph Stephen, S. W. of New York city. National delegates will be in attendance representing the International Order of Good Templars in Scotland, England, Sweden, Belgium, Germany and other countries.

The first in American temperance society, the centennial of which is to be commemorated in such a notable manner, was founded in 1808, in the town of Moreau, in this county, by Dr. Billy J. Clark. The fame of the movement rests more on the fact that it marked the genesis of an important, permanent movement of its own, very marked achievement of its own. After fourteen years, in which little was accomplished, the society went out of existence. But the reform impulse did not die with it. The American Temperance Society was founded in Boston in 1825, and the New York Temperance Society in 1829, and a year later had a hundred thousand members. The Sons of Temperance, founded in 1842, grew rapidly in membership and influence, and the Independent Order of Good Templars followed in 1851.

NEWS FORECAST OF THE COMING WEEK

Republican National Convention at Chicago Overhadows All Else This Coming Week.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., June 12.—All news events in the United States will be subordinated the coming week by the republican national convention in Chicago. This feature of the quadrennial session of national political campaigning promises to be more spectacular than usual. There is still enough uncertainty in regard to the nominations to make the public interest very keen. The convention will organize Tuesday, but it will be well on toward the end of the week before the nominations are made.

The second Florida primary to determine the choice of the people for United States senators, state officers and delegates to the democratic national convention is to be held Tuesday. Other events of the week will include democratic state convention in Tennessee, Mississippi and Colorado for the choice of delegates to the Denver convention.

A Canadian event of interest will be the opening Monday of the new Toronto-Sudbury line of the Canadian Pacific railway, which will give that system a direct line of its own from Toronto to the Pacific coast.

The centennial of the birth of Henrik Wergeland, the greatest of Norwegian patriots, will be celebrated Wednesday next at Fargo, N. D., by the unveiling of a handsome Wergeland monument.

The executive officers at the White House will be closed Saturday, which day has been set for the departure of President Roosevelt and his family for their summer home at Oyster Bay.

Events of the week in other countries will include the opening of the Brazilian National Exposition at Rio Janeiro, the opening of the International Horse Show in London, the conference of the International Woman's Suffrage Alliance in Amsterdam, the sessions of the Pan-American Congress in London, and the year race from Dover to Helligland for the cup offered by the German Emperor.

BOLD ROBBERY AT AVALON THURSDAY

Mrs. Gus Hobert Relieved of $15 on Threat to Kill Her Child—Officers Informed Only Indirectly.

Charles McArthur, who has charge of the grain elevator at Avalon and is there during the daytime, returned to Janesville last evening and through a third party applied the city police department of a bold robbery which occurred at the home of Gus Hobert, near that station, Thursday evening. The head of the household was enjoying a friendly visit with Edward Voltz, the station agent, at the depot about 8 o'clock, when a stranger entered his home and accosting Mrs. Hobert, who had her six months old child in her arms at the time, rushed to the child's throat and once what did not secure for him at once what ever he wanted in holding the child while she went upstairs after the cash and when she returned in fear and trembling with about $15 in cash, dropped the babe on the floor, knuckled the woman down with a sharp rip over the head with the knife handle, and took to his heels.

The child was under but the woman was in a grave condition when the husband returned home about midnight. She has since described the invader as a man about 45 years of age, about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, and weighing about 160 pounds—a foreigner who spoke in broken English and had his face thickly blackened. A man answering to the description having been seen by the mother all day Thursday and was seen yesterday walking on the tracks towards Durand. Earlier in the evening, Thursday, someone entered the cellar of Agent Voltz's home but was unable to get through the trap door which was locked, or at least was frightened away before he could carry out any plan for forcing his way in.

No one in Avalon appears to have taken enough interest in the outrage to inform Sheriff J. U. Fisher. To this noon received no notification whatever. The chances of catching the author of the outrage are therefore very remote.

CHICAGO NOW PREPARED FOR THE REPUBLICANS

Arrangements In The Great Coliseum Have Now Been Completed For Tuesday's Opening.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Ill., June 12.—Practically every detail has been arranged and the building crews are being made to the Coliseum for what promises to be the most perfect of national conventions, as far as environment is concerned.

Outward and visible signs that the republican national convention is close at hand are abundant. The party leaders are flowing in from East, West, North and South, to be followed during the next forty-eight hours by a mighty throng of delegates and visitors from every section, with brass bands and booms, banners and buttons.

In a coloring of gold and white, the interior of the Coliseum, which experts declare to be the home of conventions, will be thrown open to delegates, distinguished men of the republican party and thousands of guests on the forenoon of next Tuesday. For weeks men have been working a metamorphosis under the steel girders that span the big building. Today the convention hall, completed, is in the hands of Sergeant-at-Arms, William F. Stone and his corps of assistants.

In the annex of the Coliseum are the offices of the sergeant-at-arms of the convention and his staff and of the members of the subcommittees on arrangements. These offices, and headquarters of the national committee, are on the second floor. On the first floor much of the space has been allotted to the medical staff, which will consist of a dozen physicians and surgeons. This preparation for sudden illness in the gathering of thousands is in line with the precedent established four years ago.

In the Coliseum proper every detail to add to the convenience of the delegates, correspondents, guests and convention workers that could be thought out has been installed. The arrangements for accommodation of the telegraph operators and the newspaper men are regarded as far superior to similar arrangements in the past.

The arrangements make every seat in the big building desirable. The seating capacity is about 10,000 in round numbers, and of the 10,000 seats one thousand will be occupied by the delegates, and the same number will be used by alternates. The delegates and alternates will be in the central body of the hall. Nearly 500 seats surrounding the speakers platform will be allotted to working newspaper men. A hundred or more distinguished guests and officers of the convention will be accommodated on the platform.

The remaining seats on the main floor and those in the mezzanine boxes and galleries will be for the general public or that portion of it fortunate enough to get tickets, which will be divided between the national committee and the local convention committee.

Arrangements for policing and of clearing of the convention have been made under the guidance of years of experience. The seating of the hall and the general supervision of the thousands of onlookers will be in charge of several hundred assistant sergeant-at-arms and others. Uniformed city police will be present for emergency only, subject to the call of a convention officer.

The real work of the convention will not begin before the second day. Tuesday will be taken up wholly with the opening formalities, the preliminary speeches and the work of organization. The convention will be opened to order promptly at the noon hour by Harry S. New of Indiana, chairman of the national committee. The gavel with which the convention will be called to order is made of wood from old Fort Dearborn.

The prayer on the opening day will be made by Bishop P. J. Mahoney. Secretary Elmer Dyer will read the official call for the convention, and Senator Julius C. Burrows of Michigan will then be introduced as temporary chairman. Senator Burrows will then proceed to sound the "key-note."

The remainder of the initial session will be taken up with the appointment of the main committees on credentials, permanent organization, rules and order of business and resolutions. Adjournment to Wednesday morning will then in order to give the various committees an opportunity to prepare their reports.

ANNUAL BANQUET
OF THE ALUMNI

OVER ONE HUNDRED ALUMNI
WERE PRESENT LAST EVENING.

CLASS OF 1908 WELCOMED

Dance Was Held Afterwards by Permission of the Members of the Board of Education.

Last evening about one hundred and twenty-five members of the Janesville high school alumni association and their guests gathered in the gymnasium of the high school building for the annual alumni banquet. After a delicious supper served by the ladies of the Methodist church an interesting program was given. Harvey Bailey as toastmaster welcomed the class of '08 to the ranks of the alumni. In part he said, the chief reason for the gathering was to welcome the class of 1908. They would entertain a guest whom they had never entertained before and never would again, for the class of '08 would soon become a bygone memory as the years passed by. This, however, was not said thought, for the members of the class were merely passing on to larger usefulness. The response for the class was given by Lee Atwood. He said that the class was glad to be thus heartily welcomed but that no graduating class was ever known to need any advice so that they would try that aside until in the future they would feel more as though they needed it. "The Choice of a Career."
After giving the newly graduated class some advice as to the choice of their various careers he advised them from personal experience not to choose the law. His speech as well as that of the others was illustrated by some very clever stories and was heartily applauded.

Following this a violin solo was pleasingly rendered by Miss Wtha Sovarkill and Miss Amy Woodruff read a selection from "The Mayo and To Held," both of which were well received. Edward Wray, who has but recently returned from Porto Rico told of life there and some of his humorous experiences. His talk was very interesting and was closely listened to by all.

Prof. L. H. Blair then gave a vocal solo which was followed by a toast by V. P. Richardson who had for his subject, "Today and Yesterday." His subject, "Today and Yesterday," he thought was that yesterday we had and gone and that we were worth worrying about but that we should put all our energies and strength into the making of the best of today and the future. The program closed with the singing of the class song of the class of 1908.

Danced Afterwards.
Rather unexpectedly to those in charge of the banquet the evening's entertainment was closed with a dance after the ladies had been removed. The arrangements for the furnishing of the banquet had been made by Mr. Bailey the middle part last week and the Methodist ladies had agreed to provide the tables and the announcement was made Saturday evening that the evening's program would be followed by a dance, permission having been obtained from Professor Blair. On Wednesday noon Rev. J.
T. Tippet called Mr. Bailey up over the telephone and told him that if a dance was to be held in the school building the Methodist ladies could not furnish the supper and also that he would procure an injunction against the association if such a plan should be attempted to be carried out.
Mr. Bailey conferred with the other members of the committee and as the time was too short to make arrangements for any one else to serve the banquet it was thought best to give up the idea of having a dance in the school building.

Rev. J. T. Tippet was informed of the decision of the committee, which also rejected the East Side Odd Fellows' hall and intended to have the dance
there.

Alumni Bailed.
At the close of the program last evening Toastmaster Harvey Bailey explained the situation and told those present that the East Side Odd Fellows' hall was now ready for them.
Atty. W. H. Dougherty then addressed the chair and said that in his opinion the dance should take place in the school building. He gave as his reason that the weather was rainy and that there was no use in compelling the young ladies to march through the rain to the hall. He also said that in as much as Prof. Blair and the written permission of all the members of the Board of Education it would seem that they were justified in having the dance in the building and that he believed the committee had exceeded its authority in renting the hall when it was possible and had been agreed upon to have the dance in the school building. He then put the matter to the vote and the motion and all but one or two voted in favor of the proposition when a rising vote was called for, thus taking the matter out of the hands of the committee. When the boys were asked for no one arose.
The Roy Carter orchestra then appeared and the dance commenced and was thoroughly enjoyed by those present until one o'clock.

The False Position.
No position is truly desirable which

A series of letters from settlers is

The North Western is desirous of June 14, 1908.

The risen Christ by the Sea of Galilee, John xxi:1-25.
Golden Text—Lo I am with you al-
way, even until the end of the world.
Matt. xxviii:20.

Verses 1-3—What had induced these men, who had consecrated their lives to the spiritual work of Jesus, to go back to their old business of fishing?

Where did the events of the previous evening occur?

Did they cause their failure to catch any fish as to better prepare them for what was to follow?

When a true Christian falls in this business, has God anything to do with it, and, is it to him a better blessing than success would have been. (This question is to be answered in writing
by members of the club.)

Verses 4-5—Did Jesus disclose himself, that they might not know him, or was it the dusk of the early morning that prevented them from seeing him clearly?

Does God sometimes, purposely hide himself from his children, and what good does such hiding accomplish?

Did Jesus ask them if they had any meat, meaning to give him something to eat, or did he simply enquire as to whether they had any success in fishing?

Was their answer as respectful, or courteous, as it would have been if they had known him?

Will a truly good man be kind and courteous to everybody?

Verses 6—Does God always know where the business is, and direct to where it may be found, as Jesus did in this case?

Verses 7-8—Did Jesus love John better than he loved the other disciples, or was it an innocent delusion on John's part?

Which acted in the wise manner,
of getting to the land, Peter or the other disciples?

Is it ever wise to act, suddenly,
upon impulse, without conscious thought or prayer?

Will a business man who is directed by God, always have success in his business?

Verses 9-11—Does God as a matter of fact, directly or indirectly, spend our tables with food, day by day, or does it depend wholly upon ourselves?

Is the statement in verse 14 ultimately correct, that this was the third appearance of Jesus after his resurrection?

How many times did Jesus appear between his resurrection and his ascension, and where and in what order?

Verses 15-17—Did Jesus love Peter,
less or more, because of his denial of him?

Why did Jesus specially question
Peter and not the other disciples?

Was Peter better or worse because of his fall?

Why did Jesus ask Peter the same question three times?

What did Jesus mean by feeding his lambs and his sheep?

Under present conditions, with a view to the speediest conversion of the world, which is the more important, the conversion of children or of adults?

Verses 18-19—What did Jesus predict concerning Peter's death?

What does history say concerning the death of Peter?

Verses 20-25—What did Jesus mean by "that he tarry till I come," referring to the death of John?

How did John die?

BIBLE-CLASS GAVE
FEAST TO TEACHER

Prof. Louth's Class Treated Him an Enjoyable Banquet Last Evening.

Clinton, June 12.—One of the most pleasant gatherings of the year was held last evening when the members of Prof. Louth's Bible class gave a banquet in honor of Mr. and Mrs.
Louth at the Congregational church parlors. Thirty-two sat down to the excellent supper and after all the wishes of the inner man had been fully satisfied a number were called on to respond to toasts. S. A. Wilson, president of the class, while disclaiming any ability as a public speaker, made some very clever hits in assuming the duties of toastmaster. His bespeaking deep appreciation upon the part of the class of Mr. Louth as a leader and teacher, and of the sincere regret with which the class would give him up. Other members of the class voiced the same thought, speaking with great appreciation of the helpfulness of the class work. One speaker summed it up in saying: "He has helped us to judge ourselves more severely and others more charitably."

L. C. Olds, superintendent of the Sunday school, expressed the indebtedness of the Sunday school to Mr. Louth, and of the loss the Sunday school would suffer in his leaving. Rev. Mr. McGee in responding to the toast, "The Work of the Teacher," gave the public school a place along with the church and next to the home in the training of character, saying the personal factor was of first importance in all education,
and then paid a high tribute to Mr.
Louth as a teacher, a citizen, a man.
In responding Mr. Louth said he was understanding of the many kind things said about him, and modestly attributed any success he may have had to the inspiration and helpfulness of his good and true friends. He had found in Clinton, Prof. Louth's work in Clinton had certainly been most successful and the best wishes of a host of friends will go with him and with Mrs. Louth to their new home in Evansville.

Gus Swanson and Miss Beside Christman are to be married June 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Cheever attended the grand lodge of the Mystic Workers of the World at St. Paul last week. Mr. Cheever is one of the supreme directors and Mrs. Cheever went as a delegate from Clinton lodge.
L. L. Olds went to Madison last evening after the reception to Mr.
and Mrs. Louth. It looks now as though Clinton was going to lose the
L. L. Olds Road Co.

Master John Mayo had a finger cut off and another badly bruised in the lawnmower. It was a very painful accident to the little man.

Prof. Louth has an old friend from Turkey visiting him this week.

"Miss Hot" Larson of Hotel Clifton left nearly 100 Sunday for dinner.

W. L. Bruce have been entertaining friends and relatives from Nebraska.
Mrs. Ellingboe furnished her freshments to the party reception and saying they were very fine and dainty is putting it very mildly.

The musical given by the pupils of Mrs. Ellingboe, L. C. Hatch this afternoon was a complete success and the work done by the pupils reflected great credit on Mrs. Hatch's ability as a teacher. The class is growing very rapidly. Light refreshments were served after the program. The handsome home was filled with the admiring and appreciative mothers and relatives of the pupils.

The Clinton high school team defeated the K. of C. team this afternoon by a score of 7 to 0.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Drake entertaining friends from a distance this afternoon.

ANOTHER TALK ON FLOWER CULTURE

WHAT TO PLANT AND HOW TO CARE FOR THEM.

SOME NEW SUGGESTIONS

Amateur Gardeners Seeking to Beautify
The Home Gardens Can Read
With Interest.

Janesville gardens are now coming to the zenith of their glorious. The rose bushes are filled with buds, the flower have made marvelous growths and the smaller plants all show the effect of the warm rains. As a suggestion to those who are not certain what to plant the following ideas are given.

The honeysuckle, or Lonicera, are many of them natives of our country.
With few exceptions they are hardy and they are charming shrubs, some with a trailing habit of growth and others upright bushes.

The trumpet honeysuckle (L. sempervirens) is a handsome native trailing species, not quite hardy in the extreme north. It bears clusters of bright red flowers in June and usually a second crop in the fall, succeeded by red berries. It is often used as a porch climber. Because of its straggling growth it is most effective when left to ramble over old walls or stone heaps, or over the roofs of low buildings. It is often attacked by the green or black aphid which can easily be kept in check by spraying with a tobacco emulsion.

Londoner Japanese hollyhuds are an excellent climber, a vigorous grower,
with white, sweet scented flowers,
changing to pale yellow. The berries, borne in autumn, are black. It spreads rapidly from underground runners.

Londoner perichomenum is a native of Europe, a particularly fine specimen of climber, having heads of fragrant red and yellow flowers in great profusion. There are several varieties, those that do not begin to flower until late in the season being recommended for the northern states.

Londoner Japanese aurea reticulata,
a fine variety with yellow reticulated leaves, is sometimes employed as a hedge and must grow in full sunlight to bring out the color. As a single plant it requires frequent shears to keep it symmetrical. It is not hardy in the northern states.

LITTLE JOURNEYS TO THE TOMBS OF AMERICAN PRESIDENTS—

JAMES K. POLK, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

It is a rare honor for one city to possess the mortal remains of two presidents of the republic. Yet this is the honor which fate has conferred upon the municipality of Nashville, Tenn. Not only does Nashville give America the shrine of Andrew Jackson's home and tomb, but here also is the last resting place of President James Knox Polk.

The tomb of President Polk is within a few hundred feet of the equestrian statue of President Jackson, on the east side of the grounds of the state capitol. Just as it now appears, it was formerly situated in the yard of the old Polk mansion, where both President and Mrs. Polk breathed their last. The old mansion has given away to a fashionable apart-

GO RIGHT AT IT.

Friends and Neighbors in Janesville Will Show You How.

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it.

But it won't cure it. You must reach the root of it—the kidneys.

Don't's Kidney Pills go right at it; reach the cause; relieve the pain. They cure, too, so Janesville people say.

Mrs. R. M. Wilson, of 202 Mineral Point Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "I had been suffering with my back for a number of years. I had constant pain in the loins and I felt so generally weak and run-down that I often felt that I could not keep up. I used liniments and other remedies, but did not help me, and finally, seeing Don's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our papers, I sent to the Drug Co. procured a box and began using them. A few doses were sufficient to rid me of the pain and I continued using the remedy until entirely cured. My son found the same satisfaction in using them for bladder-trouble as he has been entirely free from it since using Don's Kidney Pills."

BETS ON RACES AT GRAVESEND

WAGERS MADE SECRETLY AND NINE ARRESTS MADE.

LARGE CROWD IS EXCITED

Orlando Jones, Leading Bookmaker, to Test Validity of New Laws—Management Forbids Open Laying of Odds.

New York, June 13.—Between 15,000 and 20,000 persons journeyed down to the Gravesend racetrack Friday to see the horses run and, if possible, to make a wager on their favorites. Hundreds of gaily-dressed women were in the crowds in the grandstand and the field stand.

Six races were run according to the schedule, but not according to schedule, six favorites won. There was betting, too, on every race, despite the fact that the new Anti-Gambling law was in force and that John Cavanaugh, the master of the betting ring, announced that no speculation should be indulged in. Nine persons were taken into custody by the police authorities, who in uniform and plain clothes circulated in large numbers among the crowds in the betting pavilion. The prisoners were charged with violating the new anti-gambling law, and each was held in $500 bail.

Leading Bookmaker Arrested. Orlando Jones, one of the leading members of the Metropolitan Turf association—the big bookmakers' club—was the most prominent of the bookmakers arrested. A rumor to the effect that Jones would invite arrest in order to test the constitutionality of the new law circulated early, and when he was led from the betting ring and taken to the Coney Island police station no denial of a prearranged plan was forthcoming.

Something akin to a riot occurred when the first arrest, that of Richard Weldon, a bookmaker, was made just as the horses were going to the post for the first race. Detective Carr, in plain clothes, grabbed Weldon, alleging that he had seen him accept a bet. A score or so of angry men surrounded the pair and the detective and his charge were jostled severely. Another plain clothes man, who was unknown to Carr, rushed into the thick of the fray and caught hold of Weldon's arm, desiring to add his brother officer. Carr, not realising his intent, cracked the other policeman over the head with his billy, telling him, Carr was punched several times, but meantime reinforcements had been rushed to the scene and presently Carr and his prisoner arrived at the detention pen near the gate.

Take Bets at Their Own Risk. While the racing enthusiasts began arriving at the track early in the afternoon an air of expectancy was noted everywhere. Gathered in small knots on the lawns, in the paddock and elsewhere could be seen men talking over the situation and speculating as to the probable effect the new laws would have upon racing. In the betting ring the bookmakers hesitated to begin business, but doubt as to what would be permitted was early dispelled by John Cavanaugh, the master of the ring, who warned the layers that neither jockey club nor the Brooklyn Jockey club would sanction any infringement of the law, as if to emphasize this, placards had been posted announcing that no betting was permitted on the track and requesting a report to be made to the jockey club of any violation of the rules.

"If you want to bet individually," said Cavanaugh to the bookmakers, "you do so at your own risk. There will be no giving and no taking of displayed odds, and no attempt to do these things will be permitted."

TWO DIE IN $350,000 FIRE

PACKING HOUSE IN KANSAS CITY SUFFERS IN BLAZE.

Confignation Follows an Explosion Which Is Felt Over Both the Neighboring Cities.

Kansas City, Mo., June 13.—Two laborers lost their lives, two others were seriously injured and property loss estimated at between $250,000 and $350,000 was caused by two explosions followed by a fire in the packing house of Morris & Co., at the riverside in Kansas City, Kan., Friday. The force of the explosions, which was felt all over both Kansas Cities, ruined the cold storage building, and the fire that followed destroyed the smoke house with its contents.

An explosion of sewer gas resulted when a water man in one of the cold storage departments lighted a match. This was followed by another and much more serious explosion caused by the lighting of a quantity of ammonia, and a stubborn fire soon started.

The Morris plant is located near the channel of the Kaw river, and being in the center of the flooded district is in a swift current of water from six to eight feet deep. This condition made the task of fighting the fire most difficult, and it required five hours to place the flames under control. For a time the entire plant seemed doomed. Fire apparatus was transported to the scene after much delay by flat cars. There were 50 men in the plant when the explosion occurred, but all except four escaped. Two of these were instantly killed and others badly mangled.

Antigo, Wis., June 13.—The plant of the Frost Veneering and Sealing company was destroyed by fire shortly after midnight. The loss is about $50,000.

Albuquerque, N. M., June 13.—The entire plant of the Continental Oil company with the exception of the office building, burned Friday. Nearly 100,000 gallons of coal oil, gasoline and naphtha were destroyed. Loss, $50,000.

HARMONY AMONG MACCADEES.

Lovell Ticket Is Elected and Biennial Review Ends.

Toledo, O., June 13.—Beginning in one of the hottest fights ever waged within the realm of fraternalized Maccaadees and ending in the utmost harmony, the twenty-first biennial review of the Knights of the Modern Maccaadees was brought to a successful close at Memorial hall Friday night.

SEAT CONTESTS ARE ALL DECIDED

TAFT WINS 216 OF THEM AND SENATOR FORAKER THREE.

FORMER'S TOTAL NOW 603

His Only Real Defeat in One Virginia District — "Allies" Declare They Have Not Given Up.

Chicago, June 13.—Late Friday afternoon the Republican national committee completed the hearings of all contests submitted, and turned its attention to other matters. It had been in session for seven days of actual work, and had decided contests involving 219 seats on the temporary roll call. These contests have been decided as follows:

FOR TAFT.
Alabama	2
Arkansas	1
California	1
Florida	1
Georgia	1
Kentucky	1
Louisiana	1
Mississippi	1
North Carolina	1
Ohio	1
Oklahoma	1
Pennsylvania	1
South Carolina	1
Tennessee	1
Texas	1
Virginia	1
Arizona	1
Total	216

FOR FORAKER.

Virginia	3
Ohio	1
Total	4

An Taft had 387 instructed delegates before the national committee began the hearing of contests, he will now have a total of 603 delegates on the temporary roll call without taking into consideration any that have either indicated him or declared for him in any other manner.

Only One Real Taft Defeat.

The only complete defeat sustained by the Taft delegates in the contests was in the Fifth Virginia district where a Foraker delegation was seated because a man was allowed to act as secretary of the district convention who had issued a call for a convention in his own county "For white men only."

In Louisiana, Ohio and Tennessee split delegations were seated, the entire delegation from Louisiana being considered as one contest. The action of the committee in dividing the Louisiana delegation made no difference to the Taft strength, inasmuch as both factions were for Taft. The Tennessee division was made in the Eighth district in response to the urgent appeals of National Committee-man Brownlow of that state, who asked that it be done for the purpose of leading local differences and giving the party a better chance of electing a Republican representative. The delegation from the Sixth Ohio district was divided on the evidence submitted.

"Allies" Don't Give Up.

Outside of the conclusion of the contests before the national committee the most important development of the day was the issuance by the "allies" of a statement in which they declared their intention of "sticking to the finish" and in which they asserted that it was certain that "there will be no nomination on the first ballot."

The attitude of the "allies" as outlined in this statement was greatly strengthened by the arrival during the day of Gen. Stewart L. Woodford of New York, who is in charge of the interests of Gov. Hughes. One of the first things encountered by him on his arrival in Chicago was the strong sentiment developing to couple the names of Taft and Hughes. This, however, Gen. Woodford met with the statement that the New York delegation would come here instructed to support Hughes for the presidency, and until the convention had made its choice there would be no consideration of Gov. Hughes' name for any place except at the head of the ticket.

Wants Fairbanks Renominated.

Senator Hopkins of Illinois, who will be chairman of the committee on resolutions, arrived during the day with a boom for Fairbanks for second place.

"I am for Fairbanks if he will accept," said Senator Hopkins. "He has made one of the best vice-presidents the country has ever had, and he has earned a renomination." There is doubt whether the vice-president will permit the use of his name, but it is strongly asserted that if he is nominated he will not decline.

"TAG DAY" AT WHITE HOUSE.

Quentin Roosevelt Collects for Children's Play Grounds Fund.

Washington, June 13.—"Tag! You're it! One dollar, please!" These words greeted nearly 200 visitors and employees at the White House Friday as Quentin Roosevelt, suiting the action to the word, planned a tag to the coat of each Saturday in "Tag Day" in Washington for the benefit of the children's play grounds of Washington, and Quentin lost no time in beginning in behalf of his schoolmates. He tagged 128 persons from the time he got home from school until the dinner hour. The French ambassador and several members of the cabinet were among those he tagged.

Landscape Artist Drowned.

New York, June 13.—John McCreer, a landscape artist, 69 years of age, who recently lived in Chicago, was drowned in the Hudson river Friday.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

"Standing at the cross-roads, we see a black speck in the distance growing with seeming alacrity. We hear a purring sound, increasing, developing, then leaping into a roar like thunder. Voluminous dust rises like smoke from the mouth of a fire-breathing monster and the twentieth century dinosaur flies, screaming past—moreover an automobile plying at a rate of from eighty to one hundred and twenty miles an hour.

"We stand at the railway crossing. In the distance an indistinct object whisks into view, far beyond where the two lines of shining rails meet together upon the track bed. On it comes with a swift spreading circumference; it whizzes by in a breath-taking rush and is gone almost before we realize that it is a modern electric train. Such a train in Germany has been run at the rate of 130.4 miles an hour.

"On the sea shore we hear a scream, thin and piercing. A boat skims the water, something, something rising from the water, something, something and tearing frantically through the ocean waves. It is fast and sure—we get our glasses to bear upon it. It is distant again. Merely a racing motor-boat, trying to make more than thirty miles an hour on the watery turf.

"Let us pause and take breath. Aro we speed crazy? Sit back and take a bird's-eye view of this old earth and you surely must conclude that something is the matter. Some strange and potent germ has gotten into the blood of the denizens of this planet, inoculating us with a mania—speed mania. It has fairly turned the brain of Mother Earth."

This vivid description of speed is from an article contributed by Thomas D. Richter to the "Technical World Magazine" for July. It is so suggestive of the rapid pace of the new century, that it is worth considering.

The old men of the present generation hark back to the days when three-hundred horses represented the only thing that was fast in the world of transportation, and while they have been present through all the stages of development, it is difficult for them to realize the changes wrought.

They belong to the days of scythe and cradle, and when they read of the 30,000-acre wheat field with its string of harvesters putting up 200 acres per day, it seems like a fairy tale. They are of the stage coach period, when the man on the box was about the only man in touch with the outside world, and the tooting of the horn, which announced the approach of his equipage, was a more welcome note than the blast of the whistle which heralded the fast express as it whizzed through town.

But the old days have faded away, and out of the quiet easy-going past has dawned an age of rush and hurry which has so captivated humanity that history, not very ancient, is ignored and forgotten.

This speed mania which is so fascinating is also demoralizing, for it inspires a desire to keep up with the procession at any cost, and not infrequently results in wreckage and ruin.

The rapid strides of invention and discovery have produced a mechanical age, where the human as well as the humane side of life is largely obliterated.

When a tired roadster strikes a hill, the pace is slackened, and no complaint offered, but when the machine, propelled by a powerful engine, climbs the grade, there is no occasion to rest, and the ascent is made under increased pressure.

The boy in the modern factory, stands by a perfect piece of mechanism, and directs its work, until unconsciously he becomes a part of the machine, and so in meeting the demands of a rushing age the nation is equipped with a lot of machine-made men, perfect and automatic in action, but so limited in ability that the demand is ever increasing for men of larger equipment.

This is not the fault of the men, but simply characteristic of the age in which we live. The boy no longer "learns a trade," but instead is taught to handle a machine skillfully and is called an expert workman when this is accomplished.

Along the line of the New York Central railroad, between Buffalo and Albany, a distance of 300 miles, is a strand of copper wire supported by slender towers. It is an innocent looking wire, yet, the conductor of the great electrical current which connects that wonderful power station at Niagara Falls, and the cities along the line.

The mill and factory are located today without regard to dams and waterwheels, for the strand of wire represents the waterway, and conducts the power to any desired location.

The time of the 20th Century limited, between Chicago and New York, was lengthened 90 minutes a year ago, but the old schedule was soon restored, for the demand for speed was so persistent that the companies were compelled to yield.

There is no backward step in the march of progress, and men are but cogs in the busy wheels which revolve with ever-increasing speed, and with less friction than could be expected.

It required ten years for the Scotch-American boy McCormick to overcome neighborhood prejudice, which objected to his crude hand-made reaper, because it was liable to take the place of the cradle.

So every "new labor-saving invention and discovery was fought for years, but today this sort of opposition has disappeared under the constantly increasing demand for speed.

While the span of life has not been materially lengthened, its opportunities have been greatly increased. The new century enjoys the work and sacrifice of the men who have passed on. Edwin A. Nye tells the following story of Onkes Ames, one of these old inventors:

"When the Union Pacific railroad was first built the point of highest altitude was at a station named Sherman.

"It was upon this eminence that Onkes Ames, the real builder of the road, put a granite monument to perpetuate his memory. It was much admired.

"But alas for the egotism of man! Years passed, Onkes Ames died, and the worms gnawed his bones. Economy required that the track should be straightened to shorten distance and avoid heavy grades. A short cut was made, and the massive rock pile built by Onkes Ames now stands fourteen miles from the present track.

"You may see it far away on the rim of the horizon. In the tangled wilderness the artificial heap of stones looks like a mere speck—pathetic reminder of man's puny effort to project his memory to future times.

"But Onkes Ames is not forgotten. He is remembered in another way.

"Ames was an inventor and manufacturer. He made the Ames shovel. His Ames No. 2 or railroad shovel was designed for getting under the wheels and ends of railroad ties. He also made a 'tamper,' for tamping earth and ballast, and other railroad tools. These tools are used everywhere in the railroad world today.

"The lone rock pile at Sherman is seldom called to the tourist's attention. Onkes Ames is remembered because he gave the world something useful.

"Not every man can build monuments to himself with entablatures of brass and graven words of eulogy. But he can be of use.

"He can open a new road, or make a farm, or build a house, or dig a well, or plant a tree.

"He can train up a child for usefulness.

"He can write or picture or say something to help men bear their burdens.

"He can fight the dragons of evil away from the homes and haunts of men.

"He can brighten lives made miserable by fear or misfortune.

"Is not that better than a pile of stones or shape of bronze?

"Who cares who graved the pillars of Luxor, or built the cities on the plains of Mesopotamia, or made the vases of Thebes?

"Only those deserve to live who do something for their fellows.

"Onkes Ames' shovel No. 2 is greater than his granite memorial."

The high school student is composed of ladies and gentlemen whose sense of propriety is seldom questioned. The school board was a unit in endorsing the annual banquet and party given last evening, and public sentiment is back of both alumni and board. Under these circumstances clerical opposition is entitled to scant consideration.

Editor Gazette:

Dear Sir:—I read in the editorial columns of the Gazette last evening, the following comment in regard to the police situation: "The matter should be taken into the courts without delay, and settled one way or the other."

Now as attorney for John Brown, who was elected city marshal by the council, I desire to say that we stand ready to do as you suggest and will take the matter up any time, next Monday morning if desired. As you are the champion of and stand very near the other side, I have addressed this to you, hoping that you might bring about the matter suggested in your editorial, which suggestion I think is very good.

Very truly yours,
JOHN CUNNINGHAM.

The Gazette is champion for the people and expresses popular sentiment in saying that the force of a double-headed police department has gone far enough. The answer has been served, and the case should be brought into court without further delay.

THE FACES OF THE DEAD.

A touching story comes from Buffalo. Years ago a father lost his only son, a lad of twelve years.

When a longing for a sight of the boy's absent face comes over the man he stands by the school gate and watches the face of every child. He never sees the face he looks for; but, cheered by the composite face of boys' hood, he takes up his work again.

Pathetic? Aye, and there is a great teaching in the story, and consolation.

In the picture gallery of almost every soul there is the frame of some dear face it shall never see again. The child's eye holds the portrait but dimly. The years are so thick a veil between! But believe, when the noises of the world are still and memory is quick to do its office, we almost see them once again—the faces of our loved and lost.

Ah, the faces! Most of all do we see them in our sleep. No able artist can retouch the faded pictures like the artist of kindly sleep. And how changed the faces! They were pale, worn faces upon which one day we dropped our bitter tears. But, lo, these dream faces are beauteous, winsome, smiling, as if they beheld some work of love begun, some deed of kindness done!

The faces of the dead! When we seek to find their counterpart in the faces of the living or in the faces of our dreams we are cheered and strengthened. The dead would have it so. They would be remembered. Aye, but in that remembrance were they to speak their greatest wish they would have their memory consecrated to the good of the living. And so, as we go, chastened to our daily task by the remembrance of the dead we find refreshment by the way. And the world is thus made better. All boyhood is dearer to that father in Buffalo because he finds reminders of the face he lost.

Advice to Young Men.
If you are inclined to become a husband, by all means select a wife from a family in which there are numerous daughters. In such a case the girl is much less likely to be spoiled, and consequently is calculated to make a better wife. Then you will render yourself immensely popular with the parents, who find it extremely difficult to get rid of a number of girls. An only daughter is often a shrew-devil.

SERVED ANSWER IN POLICE CASE

SERVICE WAS ADMITTED ON LAST WEDNESDAY IN

STATE VS. GEORGE APPLEBY

Dunwiddie & Wheeler for the Defendant Answered in Interesting Local Case.

On Wednesday last Dunwiddie & Wheeler, attorneys for George M. Appleby in the case of the State of Wisconsin on relation of John Brown, vs. George M. Appleby, served their answer upon the plaintiff's attorney. The answer denies that charter provisions were in force as to election of city marshal, denies that there is no other way than that provided in the charter to choose such an officer, denies that the charter has not been modified, denies that the plaintiff was appointed city marshal, or that he was at any time such officer, denies that all provisions of the law have been complied with, and denies that the defendant has usurped the office of city marshal.

New Defensive Matter

As a defense and bar the defendant further answering says that he was properly elected by the Fire and Police commission and has complied with the requirements of the law. The answer also states that the plaintiff was a candidate at such election and solicited votes from such Fire and Police Commission and that the action of the plaintiff in so doing is a bar to his asserting any rights as against the defendant by reason of any pretended election or appointment by the common council of the city of Janesville. The defendant further says that the plaintiff is still a patrolman in the police department of the city and as such under the rules and regulations for the police department which were passed and adopted by the common council at a regular meeting held on the 24th of October, 1906, the plaintiff is under the authority of the chief of police.

These rules and regulations designate the chief of police as the head of the police department and as having full power and authority over the police organization in this city. The defendant says that the plaintiff ought not to be permitted to assert any claim to the office in question as long as he continues to act as and to be a patrolman of the city of Janesville.

The answer then states that the defendant was properly elected and qualified when a vacancy occurred in this office and prays judgment and the dismissal of the plaintiff's complaint. The rules and regulations passed by the common council for the police department are attached to the answer as exhibit "A."

Time of Trial
No agreement has as yet been made by the attorneys of the contending parties as to the time for the trial. If it comes up in the natural course of events it will be tried at the October term of the circuit court for Rock county. Under section 3461 of the revised statutes action of quo warranto, which this action is, may be tried at special as well as general terms of the circuit court. It is possible that a special term of court may be called by Judge Grimm and the matter tried before him at an earlier date than the regular October term.

CLEVER JOB DONE BY A PICKPOCKET

Charles Eumson Relieved of His Watch and Chain in Neat Fashion Last Night—Geo. Conklin Arrested.

Charles Eumson agreed to give employment to an evil looking holo who accosted him on the street last evening and even bought the fellow a 75 cent supper when the latter complained that he had not eaten anything for a day and a half. Afterward they walked down Illicky street together. During the stroll Mr. Eumson took a jack-knife and pared a piece of tobacco from a plug. He replaced the implement in the side coat pocket nearest the new-found artisan.

While dressing this morning, Eumson discovered that a section of the suspender and band of his trousers where connections were made with a button and where his watch chain was attached, had been neatly scalped out with his own knife and that watch, chain and buttons were missing.

He came down town about half past seven o'clock this morning and caught a glimpse of his companion of the previous evening sneaking along North Main street. Chief Appleby was apprised of the situation and a coming descent from his flat, stepped in a North Main street saloon and held a heavy hand on an individual who subsequently gave his name as George Conklin. "Where's that watch you stole—come up with it?" demanded the Chief as he jerked the fellow's coat open. Catching sight, as he did so, of a thimble in Conklin's pocket, he jerked it from his hiding place. While the tough gentleman was explaining in classic English that the property belonged to him, Eumson appeared upon the scene and identified him.

"Now, I don't steal," said Conklin in response to a question propounded to him in municipal court a few hours later. To prove his assertion he rolled up a sleeve and exhibited an anchor tattooed on his forearm. "This was expected to establish his identity as an honest seafaring man. Having waived examination after great deal of palaver, his trial was set for next Thursday. In the meantime he will occupy a cell in the county jail under $500 bonds. The crime of picking pockets is a penitentiary offense and all the evidence seems to point to a conviction.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, June 13, 1868.—Almost an accident—the workmen engaged in excavating the ground for the new wing of the Blind Institute, had a little excitement on Thursday, in the way of a bank of dirt falling on one of them. A man and a horse were completely buried, but were dug out without sustaining much injury except what resulted from fright and that was not at all serious.

Marquette, June 12.—A fire broke out last night about 11 o'clock in the shops of the Marquette & Bay de Noquet railway, and the entire business portion of the city is now a total mass of ruins, including its business and costly shipping docks. The loss is estimated at $1,500,000. The insurance is very light.

Buffalo, June 12.—News from Canada having been given circulation to the effect that the Fenians are concentrated at this point for a raid on the neighboring provinces. It is proper to contradict such statements. No unusual gathering of the Fenians has occurred here and it is believed that there is not a single member of the organization.

order in the city outside of the city limits. The sensational reports probably originate with the Canadian speculators, interested in the contracts for supplying troops.

From the bill known as the Omnibus Reconstruction bill, passed by the House on Friday, Mr. Barnworth of the reconstruction committee endeavored in vain to have the name of Florida struck out. He made an earnest speech in support of his views but by a vote of 45 to 99 was defeated. The House voted him down. The democrats evaded a determination to bill the reconstruction committee, but in this they only succeeded in delaying the vote a short time. There was no division in the republican ranks on the final passage.

Notwithstanding that the president has repeatedly declared that the south is not to be admitted, there is but little doubt as to the reception the present bill will have. Its vote is certain. The bill admits North Carolina, South Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama and Florida into the union and the complete fellowship as soon as they ratify the 14th amendment to the constitution.

FOR STRETCHING THE HAND

BOOK FOR MANIFOLDING

Machines to Make the Most of the Hand.

Many children are hampered in the progress of the study of the piano by reason of the fact that their undeveloped hands are too small to make the proper span of the keys, and the same is true of many women. With the children, as a rule, it is simply a matter of waiting until the hand grows, but with the older person there is no prompt relief. It seems to be essential that the fingers should stretch the length of the octave. A device has been recently made by an

HAND STRETCHER FOR THE PIANO STUDENT.

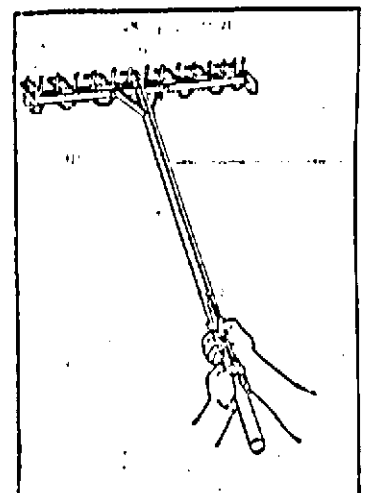

Austrian music teacher by which the hand may be stretched into the proper shape and size in the same manner as a glove. This apparatus is shown herewith. It consists of a semi-circular plate with a groove extending across its face, and in the groove there are projections capable of being secured at any point and between which the fingers are held. By subjecting the hand to frequent treatment in this it is soon made extremely flexible and the extension considerably increased without any danger or risk of injury. This same result is said to be accomplished sometimes by the aid of an operation which is always, however, attended with some risk, and it is contended by some that it means a sacrifice of the strength of the hand, which is just as essential as anything else to the pianist.

CLEANER FOR RAKE TEETH

An Interesting Device to Assist the Amateur Dentist.

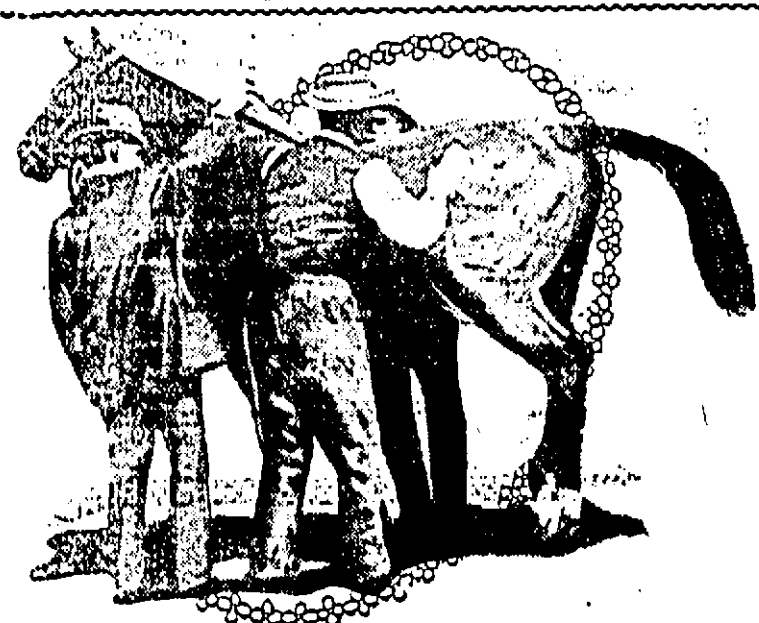

The amateur dentist soon learns that the use of the rake is not as easy as it seems to be. The teeth are constantly getting clogged with the rakings and it is necessary to make a built up more or less frequent intervals in order to clean out the implement.

By the means of a newly patented attachment to the rake it is possible to pre-from this operation with little or no loss of time. A series of tooth cleaners are mounted by means of a rack shaft on the head of the rake and as the teeth become clogged up, a projecting member mounted on the handle of the implement at a convenient point is pulled down and the accumulations are dislodged.

difficult to get it always in place just exactly in the right way, so that an imperfect copy is often the result. A new process has been brought out recently which makes such mistakes less liable to happen, and makes the handling of the carbon paper much easier. The innovation consists of making a paper of such a quality that one side may be written on for the purpose of making a record, while the other side has a coating of the carbon composition for making the duplicate on another sheet. As the book is bound a plain sheet of paper is slipped between two of these combination sheets, and the act of making a copy is almost automatic.

REACHES TOOTH SURFACES

The Invention of a Woman on Kentucky New Lines.

One who goes to the store with the object of purchasing a toothbrush finds himself embarrassed with the great variety of shapes and constructions which are presented. It is extremely difficult to make any selection. This manifold effort to improve on the brush would seem to indicate that in its old form it is not regarded as complete. One of the most reliable and departure in the shape of the toothbrush is shown in the accompanying cut. The invention of a woman in Rochester, N. Y., and it is claimed for this that it is possible to reach every part of the surface of the teeth. It has a straight handle, the number, terminating at one end in a specially extending arch-shaped elliptical portion, the extremity of which is rounded. This part is supplied with the usual bristles, which are in this case on three sides. It is said that every portion of the surface of the teeth can be reached with some portion of the bristles.

Sophy of Kravonia

by ANTHONY HOPE

Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda"

Copyright, 1908, Anthony Hope Hawkins

Within the arrangements were quaint and very simple. Besides the tower already mentioned, which contained the dining room and two bedrooms above it, the whole building, strictly conditioned by the shape of the hill on which it stood, consisted of three rows of small rooms on the ground floor. In one row lived the prince and his male guests, in the second, the servants, in the third the guard. The ladies were to be accommodated in the tower above the dining room. The rows of rooms opened on a covered walk, or cloister, which ran round the inner court of the castle. The whole was solidly built of gray stone—a huddleslike old hill fortress, strong by reason of its massive masonry and of the position in which it stood. Considered as a modern residence it had to be treated humorously, so Max declared, and found much pleasure in it from that point of view. The prince, always indifferent to physical comfort and ever averse from luxury, probably did not realize how much his ancestral stronghold demanded of his guests' indulgence. Old Vansky, Peter's father, was a major—always in his sheepskin coat and high boots. His old wife was a cook. Half a dozen servants completed the establishment, and of these three were grooms. The horses, in fact, seemed to Max the only creatures whose comfort were at all on a modern footing. But the prince was entirely satisfied and never so happy anywhere as at Praslak. He loved the simple, hardy life. He loved even more, though perhaps less consciously, the sense of being among friends. He would not yield an inch to court popularity in Slavonia, but his heart went out to meet the unsought devotion of Volenski, the mountain town, and its surrounding villages. Distant and self-restrained in Slavonia, here he was open, gay and full of an almost boyish ardor.

"It's worth coming here just to see its effect on you," Max told him as the two rode back together from Volenski on the day of Sophy's arrival. "They had been at work, and the recruiting promised well. The prince laughed gayly. "Coming here from Slavonia is like fresh air after an oven," he said. "No need to watch your tongue or other people's! You can laugh when you like and frown when you like without a dozen people asking what's your motive for doing it. But really you shouldn't have chosen a diplomatist for your companion, sir, if you feel like that." "I haven't," he smiled. "I've left the diplomatist down there and brought the soldier up. And now that the ladies are coming!"

"Ah, now we must watch our tongues a little bit! Max Zerkovitch is very pretty, and the baroness might make me absolutely posited!" Least prying of men, yet Max von Hollbrandt could not resist sending with this speech a glance at his companion. The visit of the baroness compelled this much tribute to curiosity, but the prince's face was a picture of unembarrassed pleasure. "Then be posited! We'll all be posited!" he cried merrily. "In the intervals of drilling he understood!" he added, with a laugh.

Into this atmosphere, physical and moral—the exaltation of keen mountain breezes, the brightness of a winter sun, the play of high hopes and of high spirits—came Sophy, with all her power of enjoying and her ardor in laughing. Her mind leaped from the embraces of the past to fly to the arms of the present, to beckon gladly to the future. No more than this had yet emerged into consciousness. She was not yet asking how for good or evil she stood or was to stand toward the prince. Fortune had done wonderful things for her and was doing more yet. That was enough, and beyond that for the moment she was not driven.

The mixture of poetry and drilling suited her to perfection. She got both when she rode over to Volenski with the prince. "Crisp snow covered the ground and covered, too, the roofs of the old gray, hillside city—long, sloping roofs, with here and there a round tower with a snow-clad extinguisher atop. The town was no more than one long street, which lay out at the farther end into a market place. It stood with its back against a mountain side, defended on the other three sides by a sturdy wall, which only now, after five centuries, began to crumble away at the top.

At the city gate bread and salt were brought to the hall and his companion, and she and he rode side by side down the long street to the market place. Here were two or three hundred tall, thin fellows waiting for their leader. Trill did not yet, brought formalty. In the sight of him they gave a cheer and ran to form a ring about him. Many caught him by the hand and pressed or kissed him. But Sophy, too, claimed their eyes. It was very cold. She wore a short jacket of sable over her habit and a round cap of the same fur, gifts of Lady Meg's in the days of her benevolence. She was at the pitch of pleasure and excitement. In a moment a quick-witted fellow divined what she was. "The lady who saved him!" he cried at the full pitch of his voice. "The prince drew himself up in the saddle and saluted her. 'Yes, the lady who saved me,' he said. 'Sophy had the chess now, and they mounted to her head with fumes of intoxication. It may be guessed how the red star glowed! 'And you'll save him if need be!' she cried quite indifferently. The prince smiled and shook his head, but the answer was an unrepentant cheer. The hatred of Slavonia was a recommendation to Volenski's increased regard, the hint of danger a match to its fiery enthusiasm.

"A favor, ballad, a favor!" cried a young man of distinguished appearance. He seemed to be well known and to carry weight, for there were shouts of "Hear Lukovitch! Hear Lukovitch!" and one called, with a laugh, "Aye, listen to the Wolf!" "What is it, Lukovitch?" asked the prince.

"Make the lady of our company, ballad!" New cheers were raised. "Make her a lieutenant of our artillery."

Sophy laughed gayly. "I have his majesty's authority to choose my officers," said the prince, smiling. "Baroness, will you be a lieutenant and wear our sheepskins in place of your robes?" "It is your uniform, monseigneur," Sophy answered, bowing her head. Lukovitch sprang forward and kissed her hand.

"For our ballad's preserver as for our ballad, men of Volenski!" he cried loudly. The answering cheer brought tears to Sophy's sparkling eyes. For a moment she could not see her prince nor the men who thus took her to their hearts.

Suddenly in the midst of her exultation she saw a face on the outskirts of the throng. A small, spare man stood there, dressed in unobtrusive tweeds, but making no effort to conceal himself. He was just looking on, a stranger in the town, interested in the picturesque little scene. The face was that of Lieutenant Rastatz.

She watched the drilling of the gunners and then rode back with the prince, escorted beyond the gates by a cheering throng, which had now been joined by many women. Dusk was falling, and the old gray city took on a ghostly look. The glory of the sunshine had departed. Sophy shivered a little beneath her furs.

"Monseigneur, did you see Rastatz?" she asked.

"No; I didn't see him, but I knew he was here. Lukovitch told me yesterday."

"And not in uniform?"

"He has leave, no doubt, and his uniform wouldn't make his stay in Volenski any more pleasant."

"What's he there for?" she asked.

"Ah, baroness, you must inquire of those who sent him, I think. His tone was light and merry."

"To spy on you, I suppose! I hate his being there. He—he isn't worthy to be in dear Volenski."

"You and Volenski have fallen in love with each other, I see! As for spying, all I'm doing I do openly and all I shall be, but I don't blame Stenovsky for keeping an eye on me, or Stanzitz either. I do my best to keep an eye on them, you know. We needn't be afraid of Rastatz, we have beaten Horcules Maritell in open fight!"

"Oh, well, away with him!" cried Sophy. "The snow's not frozen—shall we center home, monseigneur?"

Merrily they entered through the last falling evening side by side. Rastatz was out of mind now. All was out of mind save the fascination of the crisp air, the silent suggestion of gathering night, her prince who rode beside her. The dark mass of the tower of Praslak rose too soon before her unwilling eyes. She drew rein, sighing.

"If life were just all that and nothing else!" she said, as he helped her to dismount and the grooms took the horses. She stopped halfway up the steep wooden causeway and turned to look back toward Volenski. The prince stood close by her.

"That's good, but life has better things," he said wittily. "To ride together is good and to play together, but to work together is better still, baroness."

For a moment Sophy was silent.

Then she laughed in joy. "Well, I'm to wear your uniform henceforth, monseigneur!"

He drew her hand and kissed it. Very slowly and gradually she drew it away, her eyes meeting his as he raised his head. The heavy door at the top of the causeway opened. Marie Zerkovitch stood there, holding a lamp high in her hand. The sudden light flooded their faces. For a moment more he looked at her, then went down again on his way to the stables. Sophy ran up to where Marie Zerkovitch stood.

"You heard our horses?" she asked gayly.

But there was no responsive smile on Marie's lips. For her, too, the light had shone on those two faces, and she was sorely troubled.

The next day again they rode together, and the next. On the third day Sophy rode into Volenski in the sheepskin cap and tunic, a short habit of blue hiding her leather breeches and coming halfway over her long boots. The prince gave her his hand as they rode into the market place.

Marie Zerkovitch trembled. Max von Hollbrandt shrugged his shoulders with a laugh, and little Rastatz drove back to Slavonia through the night. He thought that he had seen enough for his purposes. His report might be useful in the city on the Krath.
